

Intapp DealCloud wins Investor Relations Technology category at the Drawdown Awards 2024

June 20, 2024

Data- and AI-powered software recognized for excellence among service providers in the private equity market

PALO ALTO, Calif., June 20, 2024 (GLOBE NEWSWIRE) -- Intapp (NASDAQ: INTA), a leading global provider of AI-powered solutions for professionals at advisory, capital markets, and legal firms, today announced that it won the Investor Relations Technology category at The Drawdown Awards 2024.

The awards recognize outstanding achievements in private equity across 32 categories during 2023. Service provider categories honor suppliers and vendors that have demonstrated expertise in their delivery of services and advice to the private equity fund community. They were judged by chief financial officers, chief operating officers, heads of technology, and general counsels at private equity firms.

"We're happy to be named the winner of the Investor Relations Technology category at this year's Drawdown Award," said Erin Guinan, General Manager of DealCloud at Intapp. "The award is a testament to how Intapp DealCloud has become the investor relations solution practitioners rely on to fully understand — and illustrate — their firm's fund performance and progress towards fundraising goals."

Intapp DealCloud is a data-powered platform built for capital markets firms that centralizes critical proprietary and third-party data. It provides investor relations teams with the insights they need to make strategic decisions and win limited partnerships. Access to real-time data and analytics helps IR professionals cultivate existing and prospective investor relationships, simplify fundraising efforts, maintain visibility into investor developments, and collaborate across teams. Using Applied AI, DealCloud helps modernize investor relations processes and accelerate potential fund commitments through every stage of the process.
